College Printing

ACH YEAR we have been using our best efforts to produce good printing; each year our work has looked better than the year before. Last year our College Annual and Catalog Printing was so satisfactory that its reputation brought us more work this spring than we could handle; we received orders from schools throughout this section of Virginia and were forced to refuse orders from more distant schools, some of which came from as far away as Georgia.

¶ Good printing requires thought and painstaking effort, as well as careful handling; our work shows evidence of thought on its every page and so brings satisfaction to our customers and holds the attention of the reader.

¶ We are still trying our best to do good printing; we are still increasing our equipment and our force. Next year we expect to be better prepared to handle college printing of all kinds than we have ever been.

¶ Have our man see you about your work, or if you are some distance from Staunton, write us.
